18th Annual Landscapes for Landsake Art Sale & Exhibition Opens Columbus Day Weekend

CAMBRIDGE – Since 1990 the Agricultural Stewardship Association (ASA) has worked to accomplish a singular mission: protect the farms, rich soils and agricultural landscape in Washington and Rensselaer counties for future generations. In that time, ASA has managed to conserve 133 farms and 22,328 acres. For the last 17 years, a significant source of funding for this mission has come from Landscapes for Landsake Art Sale and Exhibition, a celebration of the land by the community of local artists.

The show opens on Saturday, October 12th from 12 to 5 p.m with a wine and cheese reception. Admission is $10 per person. The gallery is also open from noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday and Monday free of charge. This year's exhibition features the work of over 60 artists, eighteen of which are participating for the first time. Many of the artists will be on hand to discuss their work throughout the weekend. The sale takes place in the historic barn at Maple Ridge, 172 State Route 372 in the hamlet of Coila, just west of the Village of Cambridge.

Participating artists generously donate 50% of their proceeds to support ASA's farmland conservation work.

This year's featured painting, Jini's Barn, was painted by Virginia "Jini" McNeice. The oil painting is inspired by a building on her farm and is characteristic of her vibrant color palette. Jini was a prolific painter with artwork in collection across the country. Sadly, Jini passed in early March, Jini is one of three artists that has participated in the show since the very beginning and was the featured artist in 2003. Reflecting on her work, she once wrote that she is strongly influenced by the areas local agricultural landscapes.

Virginia McNeice, Jini's Barn, oil on canvas

She loved the strong traditional shapes of the farm buildings and vibrant colors of the changing seasons.

The exhibit is curated by Leah McCloskey, a resident of Salem, NY and active supporter of local farmers.

This year's artists include: Deborah Bayly, Susan Beadle, Gigi Begin, Virginia Bryant, Jill Burks, Seth Butler, Marilyn Cavallari, James Coe, Eden Compton, Susan Coon, Joan Duff-Bohrer, Hannie Eisma Varosy, Judith Ellers, Yucel Erdogan, Ann Fitzgibbons, Jerry Freedner, Tracy Helgeson, Ali Herrmann, Margaret Horn, Mary Iselin, Thomas Kerr, Lynne Kerr, Clarence King, Randi Kish, Rose Klebes, Palma Kolansky, Karen Koziol, James Howard Kuntsler, Matthew Lerman, Zack Lobdell, Nina Lockwood, Dona Ann McAdams, Virginia McNeice, Naomi Meyer, Robert Moylan, Lynne Oddo, Clifford Oliver, Harry Orlyk, Leslie Parke, Terry Peca, Leslie Peck, Mark Pohl, Neil Roberts, Tom Ryan, Elisa Sheehan, Fumiko Shido, Laura Shore, Pam Short, Robert Skinner, Trudi Smith, Rebecca A Sparks, Anne Sutherland, Marguerite Takvorian-Holmes, Scott Taylor, Terry Teitelbaum, Janine Thomas, Shiran Toren, Mark Tougias, George Van Hook, Gyula Varosy, Laura Von Rosk, Frank Vurraro, Mary-Pat Wager, Catherine Wagner Minnery, Takeyce Walter, Susan Whiting, Regina Wickham, George Wilson.

Handwritten Cook Books Lecture

GERMANTOWN – Tickets are now on sale for the lecture “A Taste of Change: Handwritten cookbooks as documents of social and family history” to be held at Clermont State Historic Site on Saturday September 28 at 4:00 pm.

Cookbooks and scrapbooks tell us a lot more than just how a dish is made. What recipes are included often give us an indication of the family’s ethnicity and how that ethnicity was retained over generations through the continuation of customs and celebrations. Using her knowledge of Dutch customs and food history, food historian Peter G. Rose will discuss examples of such recipe/scrapbooks, dating as far back as the late 17th century and ranging to the 20th century that contain Dutch recipes.

They show the continued identification with the forebears, but also the gradual assimilation. Photographs of pages in cookbooks as well as 17th-century paintings will illustrate the talk. The audience is encouraged to bring old family cookbooks/recipe boxes and a discussion of the importance of saving such items is part of the program.

Tickets are $12 and are available through Eventbrite. Links to purchase tickets can be found on The Clermont State Historic Site Facebook page, The Friends of Clermont Facebook page or www.friendsofclermont.org. For more information, please call (518) 537-4240.

Clermont State Historic Site is located at 1 Clermont Avenue in Germantown, off Route 9G.

Adirondack Balloon Festival: September 19-22

GLENS FALLS – The Board of Directors of the Adirondack Balloon Festival is pleased to announce details of this year's 47th Anniversary celebration to be held September 19th - 22nd.

Organizers have announced this year's premiere shapes scheduled to participate:

"Allycorn" the Unicorn was specifically built by Airfly Balloons of Brazil for Monahan Airways, operated by brothers Todd and Scott Monahan. Scott's daughter Jade was the inspiration due to her love of unicorns. Monahan Airways is one the largest Special shape Balloon Companies in the United States and travel all over the world including Canada, Mexico, Australia, and New Zealand. Todd welcomes interviews and can be reached at 518-796-0373

In addition, "Simbaloo The Lion", "Adelaide The Koala" and "Duma The Cheetah" will debut at the 2019 festival. Andrew Holly, Chief Pilot of Exclusive Ballooning from Great Britain, brings the trio to grace the Adirondack sky.

"Rocket, the Flying Squirrel" and "Billy the Kid" will join the festival. The two balloons are part of a stable of 10 animation themed balloons that make up John Cavin's Cartoon Hot Air Balloons business in Indialantic, Florida. Returning balloon, "Pig headed", flown by Keith Sproul makes it's first appearance since 2013.

This year's events also include band performances by The Lustre Kings, Kevin McKrell & Orion Kribs, Pluck & Rail, The High Peaks Bluegrass Band and Across The Pond.

The event kicks off Thursday, September 19th at 4pm at Crandall Park, Glens Falls, NY. Events continue throughout the weekend at Floyd Bennett Memorial Airport (Warren County Airport). The full schedule of events is attached.

The Adirondack Balloon Festival is a not for profit organization governed and operated all by volunteers. This community supported event remains free of charge for all to attend for now all of its 47 years. The Festival attracts 125-150,000 people to the region each year and is the largest balloon festival on the East Coast of the United States.

“Chasing Light in the Adirondacks” Exhibit

SALEM - Susan Whiteman has been chosen for a solo exhibition entitled “Chasing Light in the Adirondacks” at the Historic Salem Courthouse Community Center in Salem, NY. The exhibit will be on display in the center’s Great Hall from October 4th-November 1st. The public is invited to a free opening reception with the artist on Friday, October 4th, from 5 - 7 p.m.

“Chasing the Light” is in reference to the plein air pursuit of doing just that. Whiteman states, “As an artist, I’m looking for that certain quality of light that compels me to paint a subject—it might be the diffused hush of early morning, bright sun and strong shadows at midday, a glorious sky show, or the magic of the evening’s golden hour. For still life paintings, it’s the source of light that creates the drama.”

This show is the fifth of the five installments in the 2019 Great Hall Art Exhibit series presented by the Historic Salem Courthouse Community Center. This year’s art series is focused on expanding the genres of art represented. The Courthouse is dedicated to providing a venue for artistic endeavors, for craft making, and for unique educational experiences for our immediate and extended community. They are located at 58 East Broadway, Salem, NY 12865 and are open Tuesday-Friday, 9AM to 3PM.

Short Film Screenings & Discussion Offer HOPE for the Future

MANCHESTER CENTER - Earth Matters, Transition Town Manchester, and Manchester Community Library present HOPE for the Future: Improving Food Production and Realistic Solutions to Climate Change, on Wednesday, September 25 at 7 p.m. at the Library. Two powerful short films will be shown, followed by discussion. Nourish: Food and Community illustrates how what we choose to eat- individually and as a society- has an effect around the world, and how making more wholesome choices can improve the health of the environment, our communities, and ourselves. Joanna Macy and the Great Turning explores "The Great Turning," the third major revolution of human existence after the agricultural and industrial revolutions, based on an extensive interview with well-known writer, teacher, and activist Joanna Macy. Illustrated with beautiful footage shot around the world, the film is at once sobering, insightful, and inspiring. The Great Turning is ultimately a call to take part in this new "great adventure" in order to help create a more life-sustaining world.

The program is free and open to the public. Manchester Community Library is located at 138 Cemetery Ave., in Manchester Center, VT. for information, call the Library at 802.362.2607.

Crandall Public Library to Host Panel Discussion of Four Post-Star Journalists

GLENS FALLS—What is it like to be a journalist for a daily newspaper, to bring people to life in your stories, and to see your words in print?

Those and other aspects of journalism, including self-publishing a book of those stories, will be the focus of a panel discussion, "From The Post-Star to Self-Published: Four Journalists Talk About Their Books."

It will be held at Crandall Public Library on Saturday, September 28, from 1:30 to 4:00 pm.

The panel will consist of four authors who have written for The Post-Star and have written and self-published books: David Blow, Joseph Cutshall-King, Michael DeMasi, and Maury Thompson.

Bob Condon, City Editor of The Post-Star, will be the moderator. Condon had been editor of each of the four authors at the newspaper, so that dynamic of newspaper work will be evident.

David Blow is a 30-year, award winning journalist and 15-year Castleton University Media and Communication professor. Blow wrote for The Post-Star for 15 years. He self-published his book, "Blow by Blow: A Quarter Century of Voices from my Notebook."

Michael DeMasi has been a newspaper reporter in the Greater Capital Region for more than 25 years. He recently self-published What They Said: 25 Years of Telling Stories, a collection of his favorite stories about "CEOs, entrepreneurs, politicians, gadflies, artists, teachers, clergy, police, prisoners," and more.

Maury Thompson was a reporter and columnist for The Post-Star for 21 years before he retired in September 2017 to pursue an "encore career" as a free-lance writer specializing in the history of politics, labor organizing and media in New York's North County. He still contributes to The Post-Star. A published author of two books, his most recent is his "The Animated Feather Duster: Slow News Day Tales of the Legendary Facial Hair of Charles Evans Hughes," self-published in 2018. He is now working on a documentary about Hughes.

Joseph Cutshall-King wrote his first weekly Post-Star column on regional history from 1975 to 1985, while Director of the Chapman Historical Museum. He returned to The Post-Star from 1994 to 2003 with "Over My Shoulder," a weekly column of regional history, commentary and personal reminiscences. . The author of six books, his most recent is his self-published Over My Shoulder, the first volume of his favorites of those columns.

For more information on "From The Post-Star to Self-Published: Four Journalists Talk About Their Books," visit the Crandall Public Library website at crandalllibrary.org.

Plays

Friday, September 27th at 7:30 pm, Little Theater presents "For Farm and Family", a new, full-length play, written and produced by local playwright Warren Schultz with the support of a LARAC grant. The play depicts the struggle of a farm family to maintain their upstate New York dairy farm in the face of uncontrolled development, rising real estate costs, low milk prices, and labor shortages. Will the family be able to keep the farm in the family for another generation or will the equipment, herd, and land be auctioned off to make way for a big box store. A surprising family secret holds the answer. Recommended donation, adults $8, farmers, $5.

Bennington Museum – Free Admission for Everyone!

BENNINGTON, VT - On Saturday, September 28 from 10 am to 5 pm admission to the Bennington Museum is FREE for all visitors and the lineup for engagement is outstanding. The day's events focus on issues of Civil Rights and Diversity in Vermont in connection with Fields of Change: 1960s Vermont, Visible in Vermont: Our Stories, Our Voices, and Bennington Museum's participation in the 2019 Vermont Reads Program.

From 10:00 to 11:30 am, the Museum hosts a reception and panel discussion for Visible in Vermont: Our Stories, Our Voices. View the exhibition from 10:00 – 10:30 am, then proceed to the Ada Paresky Education Center where Sha'an Moulert, co-coordinator of the project and exhibition, will monitor a panel discussion with participants whose work is in the exhibition.

In the afternoon, from 2:00 to 4:00 pm, Vermont Partnership for Fairness and Diversity presents Vermont Vision for a Multicultural Future. Participants discuss building inclusive and equitable communities. Teaching awareness of Vermont's economic, education, health, and social welfare sheds light on underrepresented residents and the challenges that communities face when attempting to advocate for all. Participants will receive a free copy of March: Book One, the 2019 Vermont Reads book by John Lewis. This discussion is appropriate for high school and adult audiences.

Vermont Arts Exchange Art Bus will be on site offering art-making activities from 12:00 noon to 4:00 pm.

AND THERE IS MORE!

In the Regional Artists Gallery, is the meticulous work of Asa Cheffetz in Asa Cheffetz: Vermont Wood Engravings. Born in Buffalo, NY in 1886, he lived most of his life in Massachusetts, and produced most of his highly detailed wood engravings in the 1930s and 40s. Inspired by the Vermont countryside, his landscapes portray his strong affection for the land and his simple yet detailed blends of the hills, sky and water. Expressed in rich blacks and stark whites, negative and positive spaces, he blended the strength, and starkness, of Vermont's countryside with his own affection for the land. This exhibition is on view through December 30.

In the Works on Paper Gallery, Bennington Museum is pleased to present Visible in Vermont: Our Stories, Our Voices. (September 14 – December 30) This multi-generational photo and story exhibition highlights the experiences of people of color living and going to school in Vermont. The project is a medium for people of color to tell their own stories and convey the impact of racism on their lives. The photos highlight the intersectionality of the communities of color and their many stories. The quotes in the pictures are terms that have been conveyed to the individuals since living in Vermont or are responses to terms, questions or statements made towards People of Color that undermine them as a people and perpetuate racial stereotypes. This exhibition is presented by The Root Social Justice Center's project "I Am Vermont Too" and the Vermont Council on the Humanities.

Located in the Sloane Gallery at Bennington Museum is the original bronze cannon that was captured by American forces in the Battle of Bennington. Weighing only 213 pounds, it was well-suited for mobile campaigns as it could be transported on a carriage hitched to a single horse across rugged terrain. While the cannon is amazing to look at, local woodworker Charles Dewey, a descendant of the Dewey family who fought at the Battle of Bennington in 1777, thought it would be great to provide visitors the ability to get up close and engage with an historically accurate reproduction of both the cannon and the carriage which carried it. History You Can Touch! Now in the gallery.

Bennington Museum Exhibits and Events

Through November 3– Fields of Change: 1960s Vermont

Explore the tumultuous decade that was filled with revolutionary change for the country and Vermont. The 1960s witnessed dramatic, paradigmatic shifts in the social, political, and cultural identity of the Green Mountain state. These changes helped to define the state's artistic, social, political, and cultural landscape as we know it today. The exhibition explores these ideas, and the relationship, sometimes tense and sometimes quite friendly, between traditional Vermonters and the progressive new arrivals.

Through December 30 – Color Fields:

1960s Bennington Modernism

During the 1960s, Bennington College served as a rural epicenter for a group of artists who were pushing the possibilities of abstraction in pared-down, color-based works that have come to be known collectively as Color Field. This exhibition looks at a group of artists in and around Bennington College who led the country in their exploration of the possibilities of abstraction. Fueled by the changes taking place in the state, this group established Bennington as a center for those exploring alternative art forms, a practice which lives on today.

Through October 14 - 1863 Jane Stickle Quilt

The quilt that inspires quilters all over the world will be on its yearly display at the Bennington Museum. Brought to the museum 80 years ago, the Jane Stickle Quilt is only shown for a short time each year due to the fragility of the fabric. Quilters from around the country, and world, plan trips to the region during that time to see the 1863 quilt. The Jane Stickle quilt is comprised of 169 five-inch blocks, each in different patterns, containing a remarkable total of 5,602 pieces surrounded by a unique scalloped border. The Jane Stickle Quilt can be viewed with regular museum admission.

Through December 30 – Visible in Vermont: Our Stories, Our Voices

This multi-generational photo and story exhibition highlights the experiences of people of color living and going to school in Vermont. The project is a medium for people of color to tell their own stories and convey the impact of racism on their lives. The photos highlight the intersectionality of the communities of color and their many stories. The quotes in the pictures are terms that have been conveyed to the individuals since living in Vermont or are responses to terms, questions or statements made towards people of color that undermine them as a people and perpetuate racial stereotypes. This exhibition is presented by The Root Social Justice Center and supported by the Vermont Council on the Humanities.

Through December 30 – Asa Cheffetz: Vermont Wood Engravings

Print maker Asa Cheffetz' meticulous wood engravings served as printing plates from which came beautiful prints. He produced most of his highly detailed wood engravings in the 1930s and 40s. Inspired by the Vermont countryside, his landscapes portray his strong affection for the land and his simple yet detailed blends of the hills, sky and water. Expressed in rich blacks and stark whites, negative and positive spaces, he blended the strength, and starkness of Vermont's countryside with his own affection for the land.

Sunday, September 22, 2:00 pm – Music at the Museum presents Natural History

Great Music by Natural History, a dynamic trio who embodies the improvisational essence of the 1960s. This trio of eclectic multi-instrumentalists has been breaking sound barriers since 1973. Jared Shapiro, Derrik Jordan, and Barry Hyman mix the inspiration of the moment with their decades of experience playing music from all over the world to create a totally new blend of world fusion, a "musical melting pot." Held in the Paresky Wing of the Bennington Museum, this concert is free and open to the public thanks to the support of Alison Nowak and Robert Cane. Reservations are not required for this performance, and it is accessible to those with disabilities. Admission to the museum galleries is not included.

"Diagonal Life brings all the bewildering, beguiling, and downright funny possibilities and implications of diagonality to life with song, dance, magic, mechanism, and stunning cardboard and paper maché puppets painted in Peter Schumann's exuberant, slapdash expressionist style." Held in the Ada Paresky Education Center. Free but reservations required. Call 803-447-1571 ext. 203.

Event Raises Awareness, Provides Support for Stillbirth

SARATOGA SPRINGS - Angel Names Association (ANA), an area nonprofit that helps bereaved families across the country, will host its 14th annual Memorial Walk from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 28, at Saratoga Spa State Park. This free family event, held in observance of National Pregnancy Loss and Infant Death Awareness month, aims to increase awareness of stillbirth and pregnancy loss and to provide support to families affected by child loss.

More than 26,000 stillbirths occur in the United States annually. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) has reported that, for the first time, the number of stillbirths surpassed the number of infant deaths in the United States. ANA co-founder and president Michelle Mosca says the walk aims to remove the taboo surrounding stillbirth, and to give a voice to families who have experienced pregnancy loss.

"The impact of pregnancy loss and infant death is far-reaching, affecting not only the families who endure these losses, but also their friends, their colleagues, their employers and the healthcare providers who treat them," Mosca says. "The experience has emotional, physical and economic ramifications. It is a public health issue that must be addressed."

The uplifting, family-friendly event includes children's crafts, live music, refreshments and prizes.

Registration begins at noon at the Columbia Pavilion and the walk steps off at 1:15 p.m. A name reading and nondenominational flower ceremony is held after the walk at 3:30 p.m. For more information, please visit <https://www.firstgiving.com/event/angelnames/ANA-Walk-2019>, www.facebook.com/angelnamesassociation, www.angelnames.org, or phone 518-654-2411.

PBS Documentary American Creed Screening

GREENWICH – The Greenwich Free Library in partnership with Better Angels, the Greenwich Chapter of the American Legion, Greenwich Interfaith Fellowship Inc., and Comfort Food Community is hosting a screening of the PBS documentary AMERICAN CREED at the Greenwich Central School High School Auditorium at 10 Gray Ave, Greenwich, NY, on October 2, 2019. The screening will be followed by a Community Conversation facilitated by Joe Donahue, WAMC Roundtable Host and Senior Advisor.

In the documentary film AMERICAN CREED, former US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David M. Kennedy come together from different points of view to investigate the idea of a unifying American creed. Their spirited inquiry frames the stories of citizen-activists striving to realize their own visions of America's promise across deepening divides.

For example: Baseball manager Joe Maddon brings residents of his Pennsylvania hometown together after a controversial immigration ordinance threatens to tear them apart. In Seattle, civic entrepreneur Eric Liu brings community leaders together in spite of their political differences to solve problems. Mark Meckler, co-founder of the Tea Party Patriots and Joan Blades, founder of MoveOn.org, meet in her living room and form an unexpected bond.

At the heart of this film, Rice and Kennedy lead a moving discussion with first generation college students about the question: what does it mean to be American today?

AMERICAN CREED Community Conversations are film screenings and scholar-facilitated discussions that mirror the type of conversation Rice and Kennedy have in the film; one designed to engage Americans in reflection and dialogue about their own part in the American story, and in acting to shape that story for the better. Greenwich Free Library is hosting a community conversation because of its commitment to building bonds and strengthening ties within the community.

The screening will take place October 2, 2019 from 6:30 to 8:30 PM at the Greenwich Central School High School Auditorium at 10 Gray Ave, Greenwich.

Ticket Info: Free Event. This event is open to the public.
